

【解答例】

Supporters of children watching TV in Western countries insist on its positive impacts in terms of both education and leisure activities. However, opponents indicate that the negative aspects of watching TV result in physical and behavioral problems, including a reduction in social interactions. Professionals suggest that guardians' control of TV hours for their children is key to taking advantage of watching TV without the associated risks.